LeMoine, Directors; J. G. Scott, Secretary Manager. rain--rain and mud all the time--a sticky, grey, uncanny, diluted earth, bespattering one from head to foot. The weather was so repulsive, that even the Saguenay muskitoes (and every traveller knows how much, in summer, they enjoy an outing) were remaining in doors. There were other troubles: the absence of hostelries in this distant region. Experience had taught me long ago, that the Hotels de Temperance and Repos des Voyageurs, as a rule, were frauds of the very worst type. Having disregarded the advice of an old traveller and come, unprovided with canned meats, I had to make the most of ham and eggs--des omelettes au lard. It was ham and eggs for breakfast, eggs and ham for dinner and ham and eggs for tea: this unvaried regime was beginning to get irksome, when my friend and myself, found ourselves...
