Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Breretons of Cheshire: 1100 to 1904 A. D My object in writing the following history of this very ancient family, and in showing its pedigree from the time of the Norman conquest down to the present year of 1904, is that my children and grandchildren may, when I have passed over to the spirit life, keep in memory some interesting facts concerning their paternal ancestry, and also retain a kindly interest in their kinsfolk in the old country and in the old homes of their forefathers. I feel that it is good to take a wholesome pride in being able to trace, without any doubt, our genealogy for a period extending over seven hundred years of English history, and that, too, from father to son consecutively. During this period history records many notable events; the mingling of the old Celtic, Saxon, and Norman blood in families; the evolution of the Anglo-Saxon race from barbarism into chivalry adapted to turbulent times, and from thence into the present age of a far nobler civilization, with a truer perception of the brotherhood and the fatherhood of man. In this new country the rising generation is apt to forget and to overlook the value and importance of Home with its useful associations. The nearest family ties are too often lost sight of, and the old Christmas and New Year family greetings grow less frequent. There is less excuse for this unmindfulness in these days of rapid world intercourse than there was thirty years back. The upholding of family interests, sympathies and wholesome pride, tends to make the best citizen, and the neglect of them has a tendency to...
